

WHITE CARD WA CONSTRUCTION

Need a WA Blue/White Card for construction work?
Get to site quickly through AVELING's Blue/White Card training course.

Outcomes

As a result of attending this course, participants should be able to identify:

- OHS legislative requirements
- Construction hazards and control measures
- OHS communication and reporting processes
- OHS incident response procedures.

Intended for

Anyone currently working or wanting to work on a construction site within Western Australia.

Overview

The Blue/White Card (Construction Induction) is available as either face-to-face or online training. The course enables employers and employees to undertake designated work tasks on building and construction sites legally.

AVELING's interactive and comprehensive Blue/White card course offers engaging, practical scenarios covering OHS laws, obligations and responsibilities.

Face-to-face Training Benefits:

- Choice of two venues in Perth: Bassendean and East Victoria Park
- Free on-site parking at both locations
- Led by qualified trainers with direct experience in the mining and construction industries
- Group activities and discussions to reinforce content
- Immediate WA White Card issued on successful completion of the course.

Certification

On successful completion, participants will receive a WA White Card and a Statement of Attainment for 'CPCCOHS1001A Work safely in the construction industry' from the (CPC08) Construction, Plumbing and Services Integrated Framework.

Online Training Benefits:

- Available anytime, anywhere using a standard computer and an Internet connection
- Complete the course within 30 days as your progress is tracked
- If you already know your stuff, pre-topic assessments are available to skip content you already know
- Practical examples, animations and interactions to reinforce content
- WA White Card issued next business day after successful completion (subject to assurance auditing).
